The Online Programmer is responsible for developing in-game and custom online services. These will interact with or complement Ubisoft's existing online infrastructure.

- Manage the interchange of data between players and the server/services/game
 - Provide access to the online architecture to presentational programmers
 - Assist in the development of innovative solutions to enrich the online gaming experience of players
 - Program and optimize systems, such as storefront data and player progression systems
 - Work with precision and care on our live systems and frameworks
 - Work on identifying and improving existing systems and identify new opportunities
 - Integrate Ubisoft's global services into our game by using an internal SDK to implement the features requested by the game design team for the game
 - Those features will range from player inventory to matchmaking to leaderboards to various other topics
 - An analysis phase is required to ensure that features provided by those services match the design as requested by game design team. If not, you may need to develop a custom service to match those needs
 - Developing custom services means designing an online service based on a design from game design team. This includes defining the REST api, the storage system, implement the web service in C# and deploying it in Kubernetes, and to implement the according API calls in the game
- Bachelor or Master degree in computer science or any other relevant qualification with a strong technical background
 - Strong C++ skills
 - Excellent communication and good English skills

Bonus

- Deep understanding of game production
- AWS & Docker experience
- Strong Python proficiency is a plus
- Expertise in online test framework and architecture
- Proven leadership and coaching skills is a plus
