As a Lead Producer on Rainbow Six Siege you will develop key features for one of the biggest AAA live service games of Ubisoft with millions of concurrent players and a strong E-sport scene. Team-play, intense close quarter confrontations, tactics and explosive action are at the center of the experience for our players.

What you will do:

- Manage multiple feature teams for the project across our German studios.
  - Define project planning (budget, resource planning, deliverables, etc.) and deliver the project.
  - Act as a liaison between stakeholders, project management and international studios.
  - Build and shape your team, foster team building and commitment.
  - Define the scope in collaboration with your team and present it to management.
  - Foster productivity, mobilize and inspire your team to reach targeted milestones.
  - Challenge and support your team to develop the best possible product.
- Bachelor's degree or equivalent game industry experience.
  - 8+ years of experience working on game development projects either in the producer branch or the project management branch.
  - Proven experience in project life-cycle management (start to finish) from multiple game projects, ideally AAA projects.
  - Proficient in state-of-the-art project management methods and techniques.
  - Excellent knowledge of the games industry and the procedures involved.
  - Very good communication skills.
  - Ability to lead and motivate your team.
  - Fluent English language skills.
